What are the benefits of being a Council apprentice?

Brisbane City Council's Apprenticeship program provides apprentices with the skills, training and experience to graduate as a qualified tradesperson, not only with specific trade competencies, but as well-rounded employees with the capability to succeed in their chosen industry.

Council provides you with excellent on-the-job training as well as additional training to complement your technical ability. This training includes areas such as leadership, communication, negotiation, resilience, career management and mental health and wellbeing.

When you're working as an apprentice with Council you can enjoy these great benefits:

- a superannuation scheme of 14%
- competitive salaries including penalty rates where applicable
- uniforms and all tools provided
- 100% of the training costs paid for by Council
- being paid to attend training
- ongoing training and career development in your trade
- dedicated apprentice support person and mentor
- reward and recognition program.

How to apply
